EMINENT GEOLOGIST IS PHOENIX VISITOR

Dr. Walter Harvey Weed Examining Arizona Mineral Deposits.

Dr. Walter Harvey Weed, one of the most eminent geologists of the country, arrived in this city last evening from Bisbee, where he had been examining formations in the Phelps-Dodge district, especially for the Superior and Pittsburgh companies. He was enthusiastic over what his examination revealed, particularly mentioning the striking of copper-pyrite which he said would run about $4 to the ton in gold besides the copper.

Dr. Weed is enroute to Kingman where he will examine the geological formation with the end in view of determining the value of the deposits, etc., to be found in that section. Dr. Weed was connected with the United States geological survey from 1882 until recent years and it was while engaged upon a survey of Yellowstone park during the six years following his connection with the government work that he discovered that colors of hot springs and geyser deposits are due to algae living in hot waters and that the deposits are formed by algae life. He also discovered Death Gulch in Yellowstone park where alkali bears, etc., are killed by carbon dioxide gas coming from an extinct hot spring. In recent years he has devoted himself largely to economic geology, visiting the leading mining centers in the United States, Cuba, Central America and Mexico.

THE SOUND SLEEP OF GOOD HEALTH.

The restorative power of sound sleep can not be over estimated and any ailment that prevents it is a menace to health. J. L. Southern, Esq. Claire, Wis., says: "For a long time I have been unable to sleep soundly night because of pains across my back and soreness of my kidneys. My appetite was very poor and my general condition was much run down. I have been taking Foley's Kidney Pills but a short time and now sleep as sound as a rock. I eat and enjoy my meals and my general condition is greatly improved. I can honestly recommend Foley's Kidney Pills as I know they have cured me. Sold by Elvey & Hulett."

ARIZONA EASTERN TO BUILD BUCKEYE R. R.

TAKES OVER THE ASSETS OF COMPANY AND ASSUMES OBLIGATIONS.

It Becomes the Only Construction Arrangement Available to the Company.

L. H. Landis, general manager of the Phoenix & Buckeye railroad company, yesterday issued the following statement which will be mailed to each subscriber to the right of way and bonus projects of the company, promptly that all may have a free and open understanding of the situation. Though the facts are already quite generally known this is the first official announcement that has been made. The statement is quite explanatory:

To Subscribers to Bonus Fund, the Press and Public Interested: The promoters and workers in advancing the cause of a railway into the Buckeye country deem it only fitting that at this time a statement indicating progress and present status should be made those who have cooperated with us in our endeavors to enlist the interest of capital sufficient to insure the desired building of a railway from Phoenix westward toward Yuma.

Last spring—practically a year since, we were able to show considerable right of way—some $25,000 in bonus subscriptions, also a (10) ten year tax exemption act, passed by the territorial legislature, our inability to enlist the interest of either the Randolph interests, Santa Fe interests, or independent eastern capital remains yet too vivid in the minds of all interested to require repeating at this time. Our assurance from the Raymond company of Los Angeles made us about two months ago that they would build the Phoenix & Buckeye railway, provided within a certain brief period of ten days, a bonus amounting to $50,000 and free right of way were donated, is also recalled. This company was unable to meet the Raymond company proposition and as a consequence their contract was cancelled and withdrawn March 30th, last.

Our only alternative thereupon was to undertake the enlistment of the support of the Arizona Eastern railroad interests, to accept our assets and construct the Phoenix & Buckeye railway to the east side of the Hassayampa river by August 1st of this year. We have the assurance that our proposition will be accepted, provided our company will secure an ordinance permitting the building of a line into Phoenix from the west, together with some additional right of way, etc. Our inability to procure such considerations will obscure for the present at least, and possibly for some years to come, the advantages of Arizona Eastern railroad construction and operation of its line westward from Phoenix. This company has not received any intimation as to when an extension of a line westward from Hassayampa river to a connection at Yuma may be expected, but suffice it to announce that completion of this prospective line, will mark a decidedly vital era in the future of Phoenix and Salt River valley and become a most important link in what sooner or later will become a through line from east to west via Phoenix. A great deal we are given to understand, however, in this latter connection depends upon approval of the Arizona Eastern maps through the Gila canyon.

Respectfully submitted,
L. H. LANDIS,
General Manager Phoenix & Buckeye Railway.

FASHIONS IN EUROPE.

Big Hats in London and Fast-impeding Gowns in Paris.

London—Masculine London has been startled to learn that the Merry Widow hat is to continue in popularity and that its size is to be larger even than last year. In the window of a fashionable Broad street milliner yesterday were displayed two examples of the newest styles in hats.

One was a Merry Widow of astounding proportions and the other was a broad turban of colossal size. The milliner prophesied that the turban wouldn't share the popularity of the Merry Widow hat.

The milliner placed upon a mannikin's head a hat composed of black Chantilly lace, draped over a light wire frame, with nodding black plumes reared on high and a bow of windmill sails of black tulle at the back. It measured two yards and a half in circumference and had a high crown.

When it was on the head its wearer's right eye was quite obliterated and only the tip of her nose was visible. The other eye had to do duty under difficulties, for the hat brim flapped up and down as she walked, and only when the tilt went upward was a fleeting glimpse obtainable of her surroundings. The mannikin's appearance was decidedly top-heavy, for she wore a clinging and narrow costume.

One chance remains for the turban. It may be worn in the new and very brilliant shades, such as couleur de rose and the dazzling blue called nourrice. Few women would be daring enough to put on a blazing blue hat of more than two yards circumference. A delicate shell pink shot with dull gold and trimmed with a couple of great rosettes is as bright a color as the milliners so far recommend with the mammoth hat. Not only are the brims of the large hats immense but the crowns of the majority are ascending to an alarming height.

Over in Paris the fashions of the day give the female form an extraordinary appearance. The latest dress is an unlined sack, tied just below the knees so that the wearer can hardly walk. The straight lines of this robe, which recall the fashion of five and thirty years ago, contrast with an enormous low bodice covered with flowers. The effect is singular, when, as at Armonville, you see a collection of beings garbed in the gowns of 1910. Only a Frenchwoman could venture on the street in such clothes.

Of course the new dress entails a new walk. It is more a blackbird's hop than a human stride. A lady with tethed limbs tried to enter a cab. She had to give it up in despair, to the great merriment of the Paris badauds who gathered round; the step was too high. With restrained limbs and enormous hat the woman of today is indeed a victim of the Mode. With such an extravagant fashion the porter's chair should also have been revived.

A TRUE PHILANTHROPIST.

The death of Charles Sprague Smith, founder and head of the People's Institute removes one of the most interesting figures in public life of New York city during the last decade. At a time when the various activities we nowadays include under the name of social service changed from sporadic and personal philanthropy into an organized profession and took on more or less the humdrum aspect of ordinary business life, Mr. Smith succeeded in giving to his People's Institute almost dramatic individuality. The work of the settlement houses, for instance, is relegated by the newspapers to the limbo of routine information in the back pages, says the New York Post. But a meeting of the People's forum in Cooper Union under the presidency of Charles Sprague Smith, seldom failed to win lengthy notices on the front page. Not that the Sunday evening meetings in the large hall of Cooper Union summed up the program of the People's Institute. How wide and useful a range it covered has been described by Jacob A. Riis, in the current number of the Century magazine. But these meetings, addressed by the most prominent men in America, and followed by a general discussion in which the "heckler" played his amusing and useful part, were a revival of the custom we in the large cities have allowed to fall into disuse—the custom of assembling in public for the purpose of discussing questions of the day or for the purpose of administering praise or censure in connection with public events. A forum before which Mr. Taft explained his policies and Mr. Jerome sought to justify his official conduct could not but play an important part in the life of the community.
